[The following was composed by one of Petoskey's school girls and sent into our store unsolicited].

Think of Bower, The Druggist.

As I wandered through the city
To pass an idle hour
My eyes were oft attracted
By the numerous ads. of Bower.

He's the enterprising druggist;
Can be found on Howard street.
If you stop to interview him
You'll find his stock complete.

If you find your hair is turning
You want a certain cure.
Just think of Bower, The Druggist,
And his wonderful Hair Renewer.

If you often go a wheeling
And your hands and face get tanned,
Send for Bower's Mystic Lotion,
'Tis the finest in the land.

If you have a splitting headache
And you think you're going wild,
Just think of Bower, The Druggist,
And his powders, sure, but mild.

If you have the rheumatism
And the ache in all your bones,
Just send for Bower's liniment;
You can reach him by both 'phones.

—EVELYN BURNETT.

The hundred bottles of Bower's Hair Renewer placed in our window, and with which a fine $7.00
Toilet Case will be given, are going fast.
